Zhongnan Taoist Oct 27 2019 "My mother is dead. My grave will be opened six months later. I was born in her grave. I am a ghost." I was born with a yin constitution and was destined to be a Taoist my whole life. Otherwise, I would definitely not live past the age of thirteen. Don't ask me if there are any ghosts in this world. If you want to see a ghost, burn the paper, write down the name of the dead soul in your blood, and I'll have it come straight to you.

The Fiery Eye Beast: Rolling Calf Jul 29 2022 This movie script/ book display knowledge about a tradition that transformed to terror in my homeland. A fiery eye beast with clanking chains that torments the inhabitants of my homeland Jamaica. Some of the events expressed in this movie script/book are events of the past. The story mentioned a curse bloodline of family that hunted the demonic creature. Filled with suspense this movie script/book will enlighten readers of the ultimate legend, that still leave the heart dancing with fear. An intriguing phenomenal piece of myth and reality that hold readers in suspense throughout. Tradition at its finest while providing a universal appeal for readers. This movie script/book presents reality from the past that occurred in my surrounding with mythical features of how the human mind operate. This work developed from an inspiration from my past, I encountered a paranormal activity a late night when I was travelling with a friend. The event took place when I was a teenager, we never clarify the situation. Everytime this thought revisit my mind I still imagine the horrific atmosphere, a feeling of fear that clearly tells you if you don't run, regret is the next level. We heard traditions of the Rolling Calf a mythical creature on a regular basic. This tradition never escape our minds . We heard sound signifying things forefathers told in the tradition clanking chains and heavy breathing . We were just teenagers we attempt to identify what was causing the sound before we moved. It was a clear area we saw nothing so we ran fear let my friend gripped my shirt. I did not saw the creature itself but just writing this I can still feel the dark presence of that night. A feeling telling you that something bad will happen if you don't run. I still see that person on a regular basis Triston Johnson even when we joke about the way he grabbed my shirt to make sure I don't escaped before him. We always admit there was a evil presence that night running was the best option. Local folks were startled by our story, they warned us to avoid the road. Some folks assumed it was my friend mom, she past on a month before the events. They claimed she want him to leave the road at late night, this situation was just a warning. The next time she might get violent. My movie script/book is based mostly on reality events that took place in my community some occurred before I was born. Anyone get the privilege to talk to an individual from these local communities Gayle Town, Long Bough, Morgan Forest they can relate. Mention the Rolling Calf to even a teenager in Jamaica they will tell you the tale of The Fiery Eye Beast: Rolling Calf and the gruesome terror it brings.

Creole Crossings Jun 27 2022 The character of the Creole woman—the descendant of settlers or slaves brought up on the colonial frontier—is a familiar one in nineteenth-century French, British, and American literature. In Creole Crossings, Carolyn Vellenga Berman examines the use of this recurring figure in such canonical novels as Jane Eyre, Uncle Tom's Cabin, and Indiana, as well as in the antislavery discourse of the period. "Creole" in its etymological sense means "brought up domestically," and Berman shows how the campaign to reform slavery in the colonies converged with literary depictions of family life. Illuminating a literary genealogy that crosses political, familial, and linguistic lines, Creole Crossings reveals how racial, sexual, and moral boundaries continually shifted as the century's writers reflected on the realities of slavery, empire, and the home front. Berman offers compelling readings of the "domestic fiction" of Honoré de Balzac, Charlotte Brontë, Maria Edgeworth, Harriet Jacobs, George Sand, Harriet Beecher Stowe, and others, alongside travel narratives, parliamentary reports, medical texts, journalism, and encyclopedias. Focusing on a neglected social classification in both fiction and nonfiction, Creole Crossings establishes the crucial importance of the Creole character as a marker of sexual norms and national belonging.
